US warmonger John Bolton has called Cuba, Venezuela and Nicaragua a 'Troika of tyranny' and is making increasingly dangerous threats of intervention against these countries.

The Trump administration is using military aggression, 'lawfare' and economic sanctions to try and force a broader reactionary agenda from Brazil, Argentina and Bolivia, to Honduras, Ecuador and Mexico.

Yet people across the region continue to organise and fight back, developing progressive mass movements to struggle for independence, sovereignty and resistance to the vicious US onslaught and attempts to dominate national resources and economies for the benefit of the multinationals.

Features films, stalls, music and discussion on:

- No to Trump's 'regime change' agenda in Venezuela, Cuba and Nicaragua
- 20 years since Chávez's election – a spark for 21st century socialism
- Cuba 60 – standing firm under the eye of the empire
- Art, Protest and Change
- Populism and stopping the far right
- Fighting back: Honduras, Brazil, Argentina

20-40-60

Plus a 20-40-60 cultural celebration of:
20 years since Hugo Chávez became president,
40 years since the Sandinista Revolution, and
60 years of the Cuban Revolution, with very special guests.
